BARAGER WINS BY EIGHT VOTES

Republican Candidate for Sheriff Defeats J. J. Somers by Close Margin—Timm Also Winner

The suspense is broken!

Barager is elected by a majority of 8;

Timm remains as clerk of the circuit court because he received 94 more votes than did W. J. Delaney, his Democratic opponent.

The soldier vote, which had been estimated as high as 500, proved to be almost nil, a total of 48 being marked for the sheriff candidates and 37 for the office of clerk of the circuit court.

For the first named position W. I. Barager received 16, J. J. Somers 28 and Richter (presumably Rev. B. O. Richter of Amherst) 4.

Soldier ballots for the court clerk's position were: W. J. Delaney 18, F. H. Timm 18, Pfiffner 1.

The official county returns give Barager 2,047; with the added 16 he has 2,063. Somers' county vote is 2,027; this together with 28 make 2,055, or just eight less than Barager's total.

Mr. Timm had a county majority of 94, which wasn't changed by the returns from the army camps, as he and his opponent each received 18.

J. R. Pfiffner for district attorney and the Republican candidates for register, coroner, surveyor and treasurer have such substantial majorities that there was never any likelihood of their being defeated.

The final result is surely a surprise to Mr. Barager, as he had reason to believe that Mr. Somers would get a much larger majority of the soldier vote.

Why less than fifty of the Portage county honor men cast their ballots, is beyond explanation.

Soldiers cast the following number of votes for the other county candidates:

Member of Assembly—Heffron, Dem., 18; Week, Rep., 18.

Treasurer—Gunderson, Dem., 18; Newby, Rep., 30.

Coroner—Boyer, Dem., 22; Boston, Rep., 17.

District Attorney—Pfiffner, Dem., 27; Smongeski, Rep., 15.

Register of Deeds—Shipley, Dem., 22; Larson, Rep., 21.

Surveyor—Moore, Dem., 17; Maxfield, Rep., 18.

BAN LIFTED ON WORK OR FIGHT

Cancellation of all calls and inductions into service last week practically nullified the work or fight order, promulgated last summer and under which thousands of men flocked to essential industries on pain of immediate induction through local boards. The work or fight order fails by reason of the fact that the only penalty attached was that of being placed in Class 1. With calls stopped the government has no power to penalize the non-essential employments.

BACK FROM CAMP PIKE

J. Will Clifford, who was a resident of Minneapolis when the first registration took place a year ago last spring and was therefore credited to the Minnesota contingent of selected men when he received orders a couple of months ago to report at the officers' training school, Camp Pike, Ark., returned to his home in this city last night. As Mr. Clifford had not completed the course at the Little Rock cantonment he had no difficulty in getting an honorable discharge shortly after peace was declared. He will resume management of the Badger State Lumber & Land Co.'s retail lumber yards at Amherst Junction and Arnott.

OVER QUARTER MILLION

Large Gain in Deposits by Portage County Banks Since Aug. 31st

Sign of Prosperity

One might get the impression that the heavy drain on Portage county banks through payments for Liberty Loan bonds and War Savings stamps, has only served to increase the aggregate deposits, as statements issued by them at the close of business Nov. 1st show a gain of over $263,000 since Aug. 31st, an average of $134,000 per month. This is truly remarkable in view of the fact that practically all the payments on government securities were made through bank checks and it would be reasonable to assume that there was a proportionate drop in deposits. Good crops, high prices for farm produce and the best wages paid at local factories and industrial institutions have been important factors in maintaining Gen. Prosperity in this section. A table showing the standings of the eleven Portage county banks on Nov. 1st is printed below:

NEW OFFICE BUILDING

The Pagel Milling Co. will soon have a new office building, 18x34 feet, with full basement. The excavation work has been completed and masons are now laying the stone foundation walls. B. V. Martin has the contract and expects to complete the frame work and inside finishing in three or four weeks. Furnace heat will be installed and when the new improvement is completed Mr. Pagel and his office assistants will be as "snug as a bug in a rug." Their present office room is too small for the volume of business done at this plant.

SMALL SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Supt. H. C. Snyder reports an attendance of only 60 to 65 per cent of the pupils since the re-opening of the schools following the raising of the ban. If a pupil shows the least symptom which might lead to influenza, he is not allowed in school, and many children are kept out by parents as a preventive measure to avoid contagion. Still another reason for the many absences is that pupils are not permitted in school if there is any illness in the family.

BUSY AT CODDINGTON

W. H. Allen has gone to Coddington, where he will spend several weeks completing some carpenter work which he has had charge of there.

READY ABOUT DEC. 15

New Creamery in This City May be in Operation Within Another Month—Manager Now Here

A. N. Anderson, manager of the Sheboygan Dairy Products company's creameries at Antigo and Clintonville, spent last Friday in this city, coming here to confer with M. E. Carter, who will have charge of the plant to be established at the corner of Clark and S. First street, the old Sellers Hotel property.

Work of remodeling this building is going on as fast as the available labor supply will permit and it is hoped to have it completed and the machinery installed about Dec. 15th.

In the meantime Mr. Carter will interview the milk producers within a radius of several miles and hopes to number practically all of them as patrons of the new creamery. The new manager is no stranger in this neighborhood as he operated the Carson creamery for several years and met with excellent success there. For the past year or two Mr. Carter had been located at Elcho, Langlade county. Mrs. Carter accompanied him to Stevens Point last week and they expect to go to housekeeping here soon. They have rented the Ralph Olsen cottage at 413 Franklin street and will occupy the place as soon as several modern improvements are completed.

The Sheboygan Dairy Products Co. is capitalized for $150,000 and now have nine creameries in operation throughout Wisconsin and North Dakota. By purchasing supplies in large quantities they are able to get them at better figures than smaller competitors, while the high grade of products they turn out command top prices. For these reasons Messrs. Anderson and Carter are willing to prove that the Sheboygan Co. pay more for butter fat than most other creameries.

It is said that no less than four outside concerns are buying milk and cream in this intermediate neighborhood and shipping it to their respective factories, one or two of which are nearly a hundred miles distant. There seems no reason why our farmers ought not to patronize home industry, especially in view of the fact that the new company is of unquestioned financial standing and are ready to pay spot cash for each and every delivery.

BABY DIES AT RUDOLPH

Raymond, the six months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kujawa of Rudolph, passed away at the family home there early last Friday morning. The child had been ill with influenza for several days and this developed into spinal meningitis, which resulted fatally. Because of the contagious nature of the disease, burial will take place the same day in the local Catholic cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Kujawa are former residents of this city, the latter being a daughter of Mrs. John Spalenka of Stevens Point. Mrs. Spalenka and her sister, Mrs. John Braun of Fond du Lac, attended the funeral of little Raymond. The parents of the deceased baby have ten other children to comfort them in their loss.

TO EXPRESS GRATITUDE

Community Will Hold Praise Service at Normal Auditorium On Thanksgiving Day

A community Thanksgiving service is being planned for Stevens Point and it will be held at the Normal auditorium at 10 o'clock Thursday morning of next week, Nov. 28.

The annual day of Thanksgiving will have a special significance this year and is a fitting time to express our gratitude for the blessing of peace which promises to result from the signing of the armistice. We have celebrated exultantly and in our hearts we have prayed thankfully, but now a proper solemn expression of our gratitude should be given by our community and the pastors of Stevens Point congregations have planned a service which will last just one hour.

A general invitation is extended and all pastors and congregations in the city are invited to cooperate. The following program has been arranged:

Presiding, Rev. Father Elbert.

Doxology.

Invocation, Rev. E. J. McLandress.

Hymn, "The Lord's Our Foundation."

ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO POLAND

Inspiring Address of Rev. Fr. Meagher at Marinette Theatre—How Germany Plotted Ancient Glory of Poland—Notable Poles in History of America.

Rev. Jas. E. Meagher, former pastor of the Catholic congregations in Lanark, Buena Vista and Amherst but now in charge of St. Augustine's church at Chilton, recently delivered an eloquent and inspiring address on Poland. He spoke before a large audience at Marinette. The young priest reviewed the tragic history of that nation and appealed for support for the new Polish army then forming. He spoke as follows:

"Situated within the sloping Carpathians of Continental Europe lies a devastated country, once the home of a brave, a sympathetic people. There by night the wheat ripened beneath the stars and by the day the sunshine locked the maize in its golden ears. Its people nestled closely to the peaceful rhythms of pure national lines, welcoming at all times Christian commercial relations with all crying humanity. The cradle of education nursing the cultured in all productivities of human genius. With an area of about 435,000 square miles (twice as large as Germany) containing the former Kingdom of Poland, Poland received its name in account of its extensive plains. Until the year 1772 Poland was bounded on the North by the Baltic Sea, on the East by the Russian Empire, on the South by the dominions of the Tatars and Hungary, on the West by Bohemia and Prussia. The total population about 3,000,000.

Germany Plotted

"At the period of her advancement among the civilized nations of the world, in fact at her very birth as a powerful nation Germany plotted to despoil her of her remote lofty pursuits. At the height of her national success during the years 1802-1825, when considered a mighty nation with an army of 20,000 men she paid customary tribute to Germany. Desirous at all times to be ranked as a friendly nation, governing her people with just laws, distributing equality of rights both to peasant and noble in soothsaying peaceful laws, internal strife was never known among the Polish people until foreign invaders thought them from the breeding pots of the world.

"During the centuries that followed we find hospitals erected, Universities erected, magnificent churches built and the whole Kingdom transformed into an earthly shrine of greatness and sanctity; freedom of speech established during the year 1500. Her wars were never fought unless provoked by the greedy ambitions of the intriguing neighboring nations. Her warriors always valiant and brave, stemming the barbarous hordes at various times with victory and when treaties made kept with sincere national honor. The expression which Poland suffered in her struggles for existence among the nations of the world is one of compassion. Her last struggle for her national independence was April 4, 1791 under the valiant leadership of Thaddeus Kosciusko, against Russia and Prussia. Unsuccessful in last revolt, defeated, Russia, Prussia and Austria divided the last of the fair Kingdom of noble Poland. The Polish people exhausted by wars and so humbled by numerous defeats seem to never gain to rally around the standard of a free people. Thus mighty Poland disappeared from the political map of Europe, and to-day the benison light of national life is the last of the fair Kingdom of noble Poland.

"The Polish and the Czech armies raised with our approval are accordingly, valuable propaganda units even though they never fired a shot. To a people grown tired of centuries of promises never fulfilled these armies stand as a substantial accomplishment. The welding of groups into units of the armies of America and of the Allies can never face the ~~fact~~ that these independent nationalities will have for propaganda purposes the same as the Slav can only be reached by the ~~fact~~ that is why the Polish army will make for peace, a real lasting peace, and why it is a pledge and not a mere truce.

They Are Volunteers

"For these Polish army recruits who at day break march to the embarkation ports for the great adventure in France, we ask the kindly wishes of all the American people. They are volunteers. The eyes of some of them are dim with the reminiscences of the fathers and mothers whom they left in American farming and industrial sections, and the eyes of others, strangers in a strange land, were full of tears for the mothers who died of starvation under German rule in Poland. For them we ask their smile, a parting salute which they can carry with them through the days to come. And from the fathers and mothers who have already given their sons to the American army, we ask a prayer such as only a mother can make for these Polish boys, who for all of their strength and energy are to fight to battle side by side with the American boys in the trenches of France, to battle so the return of the boys to their American home can be made more certain and so that the world and that of his children's shall be forever continued in safety. That they serve under the ~~fact~~ that the Stars and Stripes stand over them, we ask that they be given the same protection as the Stars and Stripes of America.

"The world wants Poland known as a nation. Europe needs her with her scattered thirty two million peoples to inhabit the continents with their glorious places, that we may all be made more comfortable. Europe needs America, and America needs Europe. The world needs Poland, and Poland needs the world.

Our Civilization

"The world needs Poland to be a power in the world. This term is known as the ~~fact~~ that the government under the sun is the only government in earth that is truly a government of the people, by the people and for the people. It is the aim of Democracy.

"Its constitution is as broad as the universe; its purpose the happiness of mankind.

"Its motto carries the message: 'Make toward none, charity to all.'

"Attracted by one's beneficial institutions and exceptional opportunities the political exile, the proscribed pilgrim for religious liberty, the victim of oppression, the homeless and the persecuted have sought and found freedom, prosperity and happy homes on our shores.

"It indeed may be said that they come 'some in rags and some in tags and some in velvet gowns.' They bring with them as a part of their human nature ancestral attachments, national sentiments and the many conditions that operate on men.

"Thus lands the pilgrim in America. 'Tis land of the brave and the home of the free!

"Of such a people are most of us and are you my fellow citizens of Polish birth or blood.

Wondrous Transformation

"A wondrous transformation follows one that blends ancient inclinations, beliefs and affections and all the emotions of the human soul into a new passion of undivided and unyielding allegiance to the government, the institutions and flags under whose protecting folds they have realized all ambitious hopes.

"America welcomes them to her breast, shares generously with them her gifts and in return insists only on the self-same loyalty that is enjoined on those 'native and to the manhood born.'

"This is all America requires but all this she demands imperatively, peremptorily, insistently. Nothing short will be tolerated on our shores.

"There are many memories that immigrants may happily retain in their new home. The things that stand for honor, devotion, virtue are advantages that well may be retained.

"Yet, however generous this country may be she does not, she cannot, she will not, allow national traditions, affiliations or affections to withhold from herself even the slightest measure of one hundred per cent loyalty to the flag that represents her glorious sovereignty.

"Divided allegiance, hyphenated nationality, any thought or view that subordinates American democracy can or will not be tolerated.

Our Eyes Open

"In this policy we may have erred to too great laxity in the past. This will never occur in the future. Our eyes are now open to the perils that attend attachments to the old land while embracing allegiance to the new.

"You, my fellow citizens of Polish extraction, have in the history and the aspirations of the motherland that which may be safely cherished as you assume the duties of American citizenship. But bear this well in mind, you and I and all of us, that no tradition, no sentiment or affection that does not add to the vigor and stature of your American citizenship are worthy in your humanity.

"Poland's past in many of its pages is an inspiration for American future, as the Poland of today is likewise the subject of solicitude in American statesmanship.

Poland's History

"Poland as an independent sovereignty dates historic career one thousand years back. Her authentic history begins in the tenth century of the Christian era under the reign of her first and great king Mieszko.

"During the nine centuries of her national movement Poland has held a prominent place in the world's fortune.

"Ever a striking character on the stage of time her alternate successes and defeats picturesquely present the story of her triumph and travail.

"She came to the field of the human combat richly robed in the armor of a mighty endowment, figured heroically in the rivalry of ambitious nations, and holds her laurels of glory even as the defeated victim of overwhelming force.

"Poland as a nation has no recognition in European courts today. Her unquenched and unconquerable spirit however proclaims as her autonomy as a distinct people as truly as when her saintly Casimir wielded the royal scepter in the halls of the Ancient Kings or led her triumphant on victorious fields of battle.

"She saw the golden splendor of independent nationhood mantle the genius of her people as they smote the invading teutonic legions along the Vistula. She heard the mournful strain of a nation's voices dirges chanted over her prostrate body on the plains of Warsaw.

Never Surrendered

"But never did she cease her fight for the cause of national integrity and independence that the spirit of freedom implanted in the souls of her heroes, dead even when the black clouds arched the sky, and her soul had momentarily fled.

"She plodded pictures of the dark time.

"Sarmacy fell weeping in the arms of a general's dead and prostrate body.

"She wept over the bones of her sons.

NEW NORMAL TEACHER

Mr. F. L. Fritter becomes Member of Local School Faculty. Dr. Garette Coming Here.

Miss E. L. Fritter, of Normal, Ill., has been engaged to take the place of Miss Helen Trudell, as teacher of English for the remainder of the local Normal school year. Miss Fritter has had four years of teaching experience and received her scholastic training in the Normal school at Normal, Illinois, and in the university of Middle Tennessee, of which institution her father was president.

The United War Fund drive in the Normal school, in charge of a committee of which Professor Smith is the chairman, will conclude today. A unique feature of the drive has been the wholesome and enthusiastic cooperation of the student body in the matter of public speeches from the platform in the nature of four-minute talks. The following list reveals the nature and scope of the addresses:

"Our Campaign"—Earl Kjer.
"Over Here"—Edith Stevens.
"Over There"—Hazel Scott.

"On to Victory"—Zella Fuller.
Recitation—"Edith Cavell"—Edith Covell.

Dr. Sarah Garrett, who officiates as physician for the normal school system of the state, will come to us from Platteville today or Thursday to serve the institution for a few weeks. It is particularly fortunate at this time of prevalence of influenza to have her with us as a protection to the community, as well as to the members of the school. In the meantime, students are urged to exercise the utmost care in avoiding attacks of influenza, thus keeping away from crowds, as well as from coughs and sneezes, washing hands immediately before eating, keeping windows open, and living out of doors as much as possible. The school is using every possible means to conserve the health of faculty and students.

President Sims will address the teachers of the city of Sheboygan Saturday morning on topics of educational interest.

Miss Bessie M. Allen, head of the Home Economics department, will attend a meeting of teachers of vocational branches under the Smith-Hughes act, at Racine Friday and Saturday, and will address them Friday afternoon, her subject being "Home Economics in the Vocational Schools and What the Teacher Should Be Prepared to Do."

Owing to the closing of school due to influenza, a readjustment has been made in the first two quarters. The first quarter, which would have normally ended last week, will close Friday, November 29, and the second quarter will open Monday, December 2. Students desiring to qualify for teaching next year may do so by entering December 2d and attending thru the year and the summer session. It is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity.

"Flu" Vaccine

The use of this vaccine is also valuable in treating ordinary C. T. Tonsilitis, Ear, Bronchial and Pulmonary infection, and also in conferring immunity against an attack. In most cases, use of this vaccine will prevent spread of the infection to the deeper air passages where the condition may become chronic.

Why live in fear of this dread infection when you are able to prevent it?

Have every member of your family immune to the Flu. Get a package at once (as the supply is limited) and have your family physician use it.

A splendid fertilizer for all pot plants and evergreens may be made in this way: Dissolve one can of lye in two gallons of water; put in enough bones to make a thick, crusty mass. A few spoonfuls of this in your watering pot once a week will give a wonderful result.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Central Europe in a Turmoil of Revolution, With the Socialists on Top.

RULERS ABANDON THRONES

Germany's Plea for Food Will Be Granted by Allies—Mutiny of Fleet May Hamper Armistice—Predictions as to the Peace Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Falling thrones and fleeing kings and princes; a maelstrom of social revolution and military mutiny; Soviets of the workers and soldiers in control, and former autocrats in hiding.

That in brief is the condition in central Europe, following the cessation of hostilities. How it will all end, not the wisest statesmen can conjecture. Quick work by level-headed leaders may direct aright the great movement and bring out of the chaos orderly and firmly grounded governments of and for the people. At present it seems that a favorite jest has become a sober fact and that the big task now is to make democracy safe for the world.

In Germany the Socialists are establishing themselves under the leadership of their chancellor, Friedrich Ebert, a dynamic and highly esteemed man. The several factions of the party appear to be working in some harmony, and the Bolsheviks, though yet in the decided minority, have been given recognition which is encouraging them to demand more. In Berlin, where the German republic was proclaimed, there has been intermittent fighting between the revolutionists and some officers and troops that remained loyal to the old order, and in some other cities there were conflicts; but on the whole the change has been accomplished with remarkably little violence. The leaders occupy the reichstag building in Berlin and are striving to put the affairs of life on a normal basis.

In the allied countries there was a shrewd suspicion that the revolution was being fostered and directed under cover by the leaders of the old government in the hope that through it they might be spared some of the rigors of the peace settlement. Such, too, was the explanation of the establishment of a republic in Bavaria, and in Schleswig-Holstein, which states now say they will become parts of the new German state.

There was great rejoicing along the entire front in France and Belgium when the news spread of the signing of the armistice. Allies and Germans alike cheered the announcement and at once emerged from their trenches and threw aside the caution to which long years of warfare had accustomed them. The retrograde movement of the Huns was accelerated in obedience to the terms of the armistice but for several days the allied armies did not follow them. Then began their own advance into the regions the enemy had been forced to evacuate.

On Thursday it was announced that the Americans had crossed the frontier toward Metz and Strasburg, and that on Sunday Marshal Foch, commander in chief of the allied armies, would make formal entry into those cities of Lorraine and Alsace in the presence of President Poincaré and Premier Clemenceau.

In Brussels and other cities the German soldiers got out of hand and were reported to be burning and pillaging. The allies' high command at once warned the German high command that unless this violation of the armistice terms were stopped the allies would take drastic steps.

It is generally agreed now that the world peace conference will meet somewhere in Europe, probably in Versailles. Whether or not President Wilson will attend is not settled. It has been suggested that he be present at the opening and then return home to attend to the vastly important domestic problems that must be solved. Possibly America's representatives at the peace board will include Secretary Lansing, Colonel House, Elihu Root and Justice Louis Brandeis. The proceedings of the conference are sure to be protracted, and well informed correspondents are amusing themselves and their readers by speculating on the conclusions that it will reach. Briefly, they predict that Germany will be compelled to restore Alsace-Lorraine to France; that Luxembourg will be united to Belgium; that Poland will receive large additions, including part of Prussia.

The New York Times, though waiting for the terrible harshness of the peace terms, predicts they will do all they can to delay them. On land this will not be so hard, but the naval situation has been complicated by the seizure of most of the German fleet and of the fortified island of Heligoland by revolting sailors. These men saw, in the surrender and dismantling of the war vessels, the end of their livelihood, so they took possession of the ships and sailed from some of the ports. Their future plan of action, if they have any, is mystic. When the allies want to, they can do it. In the meantime, the end of their livelihood, so they took possession of the ships and sailed from some of the ports. Their future plan of action, if they have any, is mystic. When the allies

HIGHWAYS OF FRANCE

How They Look to an American Engineer—Lieut. Gillespie Makes Comparison

The following is the second of a series of articles on highway work in France written to "Good Roads" by Lieut. J. E. Gillespie, formerly of the Wisconsin Highway department, who is now an officer of the engineering corps in France.

The French system divides the roads into four classes, as follows:

1. The National roads which have a minimum width of 10 meters between outside road ditches, with 6 meters of macadam surfacing and two meters of shoulder or parking on either side. The majority of the older roads are much wider than the minimum given above, many of them being 16 meters in width.

2. The Department roads have a minimum width of eight meters between road ditches, five meters of stone surfacing and 1½ meters of parking on either side.

3. The Great Communication roads have a width between ditches of seven meters and a macadam width of from four to five meters.

4. Communal roads, corresponding to our country roads, have a minimum width between ditches of six meters and a width of macadam of three meters.

Fully 80 percentum of the French roads I have seen are built and resurfaced with limestone rock, the other 20 per cent being built of gravel or of a hard dark blue stone which resembles our trap rock. The roads do not have very much crown but the water finds its way quickly to the shallow ditches at the edges of the surfacing and is then led into the main road ditches by another set of drains which cross the parkway or shoulder at intervals of about 25 or 30 feet.

Small marker stones are set for each 100 meters of roadway and larger markers of nicely cut stone at the kilometer points. These kilometer stones indicate the class of road, the nearest large city on either side and the distances. The maintenance and resurfacing work on the National Roads is handled through the National or Office of Public Works and this office also supervises, through their department engineers, the work on the Departmental Roads and Great Commercial Roads.

In some districts the people can work out their road tax on the Commercial roads, but on all the other roads the work is done by maintenance men who work on the roads the year round. On the National Highways one man looks after about five kilometers. Limestone rocks about the size of a hat are delivered in piles on the parkway at the side of the road by men who contract this work and the maintenance man mounts these piles and with his stone hammer breaks the rock into sizes ranging from about 1" to 2½". He does not have a horse and wagon, but uses a wheelbarrow for transporting the stone. I am told that the average man will break about one cubic meter of stone per day and that before the war the average rate of pay for this kind of work was about six francs per day, whereas at the present time a man cannot support a family on less than 15 francs per day.

There were some commercial quarries scattered throughout France which furnished crushed rock before the war but these were very few indeed and there was nothing corresponding to our small jaw crusher which could be moved about from place to place. The French engineers with whom I have talked are unanimous in the opinion that portable crushers and bins will soon come into use after the war because of the scarcity of labor. Oils and tars are used only in the large cities or in the immediate vicinity of those cities and dust reigns supreme on the remainder of the system. The grades are very easy but this is not accomplished by heavy grading but by increasing the length of road by curved alignments. These curves probably served their purpose in the era of horse drawn vehicles but with the present high speed motor traffic they are extremely dangerous and I am of the opinion that thousands of them will have to be relocated in the near future.

Of the railroad crossings I should say that the French have about the same percentage of grade crossings as we have in Wisconsin, but all of them, with the possible exception of a few on Communal roads, are protected by gates. These gate keepers are paid by the railroad company and the gates are usually kept closed whether there is a train due or not. You drive up to the crossing, honk your horn and the gate keeper leisurely strolls out and raises the gate for you to pass, closing it again when your maledictions have died away in the distance. It holds up traffic to be sure but the French care naught for a few minutes at any time of day.

A DAY OF REAL SPORT

The Tale of a Coon Hunt and The Capture of Three Told by One of the Two Hunters

On the afternoon of November 1st Clem and I went to Cate's Buff to hunt squirrels. Clem took his Reo and we weren't long getting there. We got out and as we walked through an open field wood my dog Browne began to snuff the ground, gave tongue and went barking down a track. "Kabon," said Clem. I thought he was wrong as there was no underbrush, but I slipped two shots into my shotgun. After going about thirty rods Browne stopped and began running around the trees in a small hollow. I looked up into one of them and saw the rat of a big fat coon. I called to Clem. He has a thirty-two rifle. He was mighty glad, as I didn't want to spoil the fun with my shotgun.

We drew sticks up into the tree to make the bellow show his head. It wouldn't move so I said, "Give me a rifle." Clem. I took him up. Clem said, "You'll get hurt." The tree was a good sized oak split nearly to the bottom, so a man could get his foot in for a good start. I took out my hunting coat, Clem gave me a nice tie, took up a went. When I got to about six feet of the tree it was all our squirrels best here turned out to be not one big fat coon, but three, circled around the tree trying to make by holding their heads down in the old nest.

I came nearer. One coon started up the tree. Clem raised his gun, wait, I shouted. "Be sure you do a good job or he'll kill Browne when he runs." "It's no time my dog, said Clem, unless the coon can run faster than he does."

Sure enough, about ten rods away sat sport, watching the game from a safe distance. Clem is a fine shot and the coon fell stone dead. Browne tackled it bravely and Clem had to throw it into a tree to save its hide. He had hit it back of the ear.

One of the two left on the tree stuck its head around the trunk and looked me square in the face. "Get around behind me, I shouted. "Shoot this one in the eye!"

Down came one coon. I ducked my head. It struck my shoulder and then, with a thud, the ground. Clem had hit it straight through the eye.

Browne didn't tackle this one. She had been punished too much for her first offense, but she stuck to her post at the root of the tree. So did sport to his, a safe distance away.

The last of the three coons looked around the tree and down at the ground. Clem ran around the tree to race it and raised the gun. Bingo! down came the last of the three, stone dead. Had been shot like the second one through the eye.

I hurried down to the ground. We put our game in an old gunny sack and started for the road, happy over our sixty pound bag, and reeling as the days of sport had come again.

RED CROSS SEALS AID CHRISTMAS ROLL CALL

Forces Combine in One Big Campaign

Instead of Two Separate Ones Is Win-The-War Measure

Adoption of the national plan by which Red Cross Christmas Seals will be given this year as premiums with Red Cross memberships instead of being placed on sale in separate campaign is striking evidence of the spirit of co-operation which has been so large a factor in the winning of the war. It will be the first time since the organization of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association ten years ago that there has been no Red Cross Christmas Seal Sale in Wisconsin.

This year the state association puts aside its annual campaign to assist in making a monster success of the combined campaign to be conducted just before the holiday season by the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association, and to be known as the Christmas Roll Call. This union of forces for the 1918 campaign does not mean the permanent abandonment of the annual Christmas Seal Sale by which up to the present time the educational campaign against tuberculosis in Wisconsin has been financed. It is a win-the-war measure adopted for the period of the war only and animated by the loyal desire of the two national organizations and their local branches to centralize effort, to economize the time of workers, and to minimize as far as possible the number of financial demands made on the public.

The cooperative Christmas Campaign is official recognition of the anti-tuberculosis campaign as war work which must of necessity have been undertaken by the Red Cross, were it not for the fact that it is already being done by the established anti-tuberculosis associations. Under the agreement by which the anti-tuberculosis agencies combine their Christmas campaign with the Christmas Roll Call of the Red Cross, the Red Cross has assumed the responsibility of financing the anti-tuberculosis work for the coming year and has appropriated $2,500,000 for this purpose.

This appropriation will be made directly to the National Tuberculosis Association. Each state association receives its apportionment from the national association, being guaranteed a sum equal to the gross seal sale of last year.

Notice is hereby given that at the special term of said court to be held on the third Tuesday of December, A. D. 1918, at the court house in the city of Stevens Point, county of Portage, and state of Wisconsin, there will be heard and considered, the application of George Ross, to admit to probate, his last will and testament of Hanford H. Ross, deceased.

Notice is hereby given that at the regular term of said court to be held at said court house, on the 1st Tuesday of April A. D. 1919, there will be heard, considered and adjusted, all claims against said Hanford H. Ross, deceased.

And notice is hereby further given, that all such claims for examination and allowance must be presented to said county court at the court house in the city of Stevens Point, in said county and state, on or before the 18th day of March, A. D. 1919, or be barred.

Dated November 18th, 1918.

Attorney for Petitioner.
